Mind if I sit down?

uh... sure?

So I see that you're eating the ribs.

yess, they're excellent.

Here, check out where they come from.

uh. That's disgusting... I can't finish.

Nom nom... being Fireman rules.

Ok... video of PETA propaganda.

to Seattle steampunks for keeping it punk to infoshop.org, despite the comments section

Anti-Copyright: The phrase anti-copyright means nothing, legally. So, by default, this is still copyright. But it tells you that you can do whatever you want, like copy or re-use this, for anarchist, non-commercial purposes.

www.tangledwilderness.org

The SUPER HAPPY ANARCHO-FUN PAGES!

Winter 08-09

#13

Featuring:

- A long, convoluted plotline involving alcohol, liberals, and prison!

- Steampunk!

- Crusty haircuts!

stealing things from pacifists is so easy, it's almost not fun.

And...

No, it's still fun.

Always FREE!
It's been almost a year since I last put out an issue of SHAFF. What happened? Well, mostly a bunch of stuff that wasn't very funny. I learned, too, that new people and places are my inspiration (at least they are now). But I've already got half of #14 written, so with any luck, '09 will have a full 4 issues of comics. Or, of course, even better, '09 will be full of anarchist projects, activism, and resistance. I may be jaded, but the December actions in Greece were incredibly inspiring. As the economy crumbles, it's never been more important to promote and practice gift economies. And urban gardening, of course.

This past nearly-year since issue #12, Strangers in A Tangled Wilderness has put out two exciting zines, both awkwardly sharing the title "Post-Civ". There's also a new CD, a demo by Magpie Killjoy. And a nearly encyclopedia-style look at police less-lethal technology. But even more exciting things are in the works:

- zines ready to print
- CDs ready to burn
- www.postcivlized.net
- www.tangledwilderness.org
- a new journal in the works
- www.steampunkmagazine.com
- keeping steampunkpunk

contact us!
Strangers@riseup.net

I've been working so hard all of the time, and sometimes I wonder why bother? I mean, when I die, I'm dead, you know?

well, what else are you going to do with your time? Play video games?

Later

good point. sigh.

* on projects, of course, not jobs.

I've come up with the perfect revenge.

You know that revenge kind of goes against anarchist principles, right?

just bear with me.

I have to go out. But if the rental company calls, give them the address on this piece of paper.

what the hell? where's my car?

The next morning, at the neo-victorian's well, darling, I'm off to work, climbing the corporate ladder. So I can keep you in crumpets and fuel gas...

what the hell? where's my car?

Ha! You've been steampunk'ed!

Joe's Blimp Rental

Congratulations! You've just read the most complicated and bizarre page of the Super Happy Anarcho-Fun Pages ever published!
What's wrong?
I used to love steampunk, back when it was punk. Now it's just about brass goggles and fake rags.
say, is that for me? What is it?
But you love steampunk!

It's these damn bougie neo-victorians, parading around all pro-colonialist. They ruined the scene. It was on MTV for Christ's sake!

So, what you're saying is that you liked steampunk before it was cool?

You know you sound like an indie-rocker or something right now, don't you?

MTV!

Okay, let's break into groups and brainstorm ideas for posters.

what are the posters for again?

To stop a timber sale. I told you that twice.

I'm drunk.

I know you told me. Twice.

hee hee!

Ha! Look at that puerper!
They call that steampunk?

True! Why, don't they know that Victorians didn't wear bras under their corsets?

They have no respect for historical accuracy.

Would you pass me my dether-discombobulator cannon?
of course!

so, we're down to two ideas. Mine is "It is economically undesirable to clearcut our watershed because then we have to pay more money to filter our water before we can drink it." All in favor?

And then, we have this drunken idiots idea...

"Stop cutting down trees, you assholes."
I am betrayed! You've abandoned 'rationality for anonymity.'

What? What does that mean?

Did we really just take over a liberal group?

I guess so.

I have a feeling well regret this in the morning.

Ah, alcohol.

Oh, my head. What a hangover. I don't even remember going to the show last night. We didn't go to the show last night, we went to a meeting.

No, it must have been a show. I've got the new band shirt on. 'Cesspool.' That's the name of the group. Citizen Environmentalists Supporting Specific Parts of Old Laws.

Oh, weird. Then why is there a pentagram in the logo? Cause they let you do the silkscreening.

So, what happened at the end of the meeting? Did we organize any kind of protest?

I dunno. I blacked out during the "whisky strawpull."

Well, only one way to find out what we did last night. What's that?

There must have been an informant there, it was a public meeting. Let's just FOIA for their notes.

Hey, Koala, I've got bad news. It looks like our house has lice, staph, and scabies.

What?

Haha, just kidding...

Phew.

We don't really have scabies.

Aww, don't worry, you look nice with a shaved head.

I was just trying to be nice.

Okay, fine. Hey there, Koala, you look like a nazi.

No I don't.

Grumble/grumble.

Public Service Announcement!

It's frustrating that "skinhead" has become synonymous with "nazi." Skinhead culture developed in the 70s as a working class culture that wasn't racist at all.

Then a few prominent skinhead bands made the transition to racist politics and forever since, anti-racist skins have had to put up with being called nazi. This is ironic because anti-racist skins are some of the most militant anti-racists and anti-fascists you'll ever meet.

Nazi skins are pretty easy to identify - they wear swastikas, often have white faces in their band, and every time they open their mouths, they say nonsense.

Sigh.
A GUIDE TO CRUSTY HAIRSTYLES!
combine two or more of the following!
(or roll a die two or three times, for chaos!)

| | | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peyes/sidelocks</td>
<td>dreadlocks</td>
<td>mullet</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mohawk</td>
<td>chelsea</td>
<td>shaved spots</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

or try one of the classics!

| |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Dreadhawk:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>double the appropriation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Incognito:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>no one can tell that you're an anarchist unless they read your patches</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Squatterhawk:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>when a fashion punk lets themselves go</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Dread Mullet:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>looks best with carhartt brand overalls</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Patchy:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>buzzed with multi-tool scissors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Crust:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>random, dreadlocks mixed with shaved spots</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Anti-Fascist Skin:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>easily distinguishable from fascist skin, by obscure fashion codes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fauxhawk:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>no anarchists have fauxhawks</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chelsea:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>not just for girls anymore</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

oh, hell. According to this government report, the action is happening right now, at city hall.

I don't know. They censored that part.

Guess we should just bring it all. Never hurts to be over-prepared.

*This statement is untrue.

Signs! That's what we forgot, signs!

well, we'll just have to make do with what we brought.

I'll start looking people to things, and you scale city hall with a megaphone.

what about people who aren't prepared for arrest? Isn't it wrong to escalate tactics around those who haven't consented on that?

Let's be clear: I'm just here to protect my leg. Why is it illegal to lock my leg to the bench?

officers! There's been a mistake! You can't arrest me. Just look at the color of my skin! The cut of my suit jacket! I've been led astray by these two anarchists.

I think we're safe.

Run? Run.

plew.

oh pun.
You self-described anarchists are coming with us.
Well, you two are self-described anarchists, are you not?
You self-professed anarchists are coming with us.
Not to argue, but wasn't it that guy back there that called us anarchists?
Are you capable of saying "anarchist" without saying "self-described" first?
Geez. This guy is as bad as the media.

Alright, everyone. Word from the state level is that part of the reason so many of you go right back to crime on the outside is that morale in here is too low. So guess what? This week is gonna be "Spirit week."

So today is "candy soup day."
Gee, I hope it's vegan candy.

Like chicossticks.

You have been charged with conspiracy to obstruct governmental business, a terrorist charge.

How do you plead?
I hate you.

That's not a plea.
Whatever, it's the truth.

You have been charged with conspiracy to obstruct governmental business, a terrorist charge.
How do you plead?

My mother told me that it's best to just ignore bullies.

Well?
You're both going to prison.

Day 2
It's "bring your daughter to jail day."

Day 3
It's "dress for success day."

Day 4
It's "double work shift day."

Day 5
Okay, so today is "opposite day." Today, we're the prisoners and you're the guards.

Oh, hell. I think they all just left.

Why didn't it occur to us that this would happen?
I get top bunk!